Masked Burglars tracked through apartment break-in
Officer Scott Korte reported that he was called last week, to a burglary on the 1000 block of Sutter. The Officer entered the apartment and saw that the place was "trashed" including toilet paper strewn about the bathroom and all over the rest of the apartment. The investigation turned a bit when they learned that entry was made from a second floor window and that food that was left out for the occupant's dogs had been eaten. The burglars then apparently developed a thirst and drank every drop of water from the toilet bowl. It was then that the officers saw the footprints on the toilet and around the apartment, very small, thin footprints. Turns out the suspects were raccoons. No capture was made.

Seriously folks, if we learn anything from this case, it is that even if you live on a level above the ground floor, it may still be accessed. Remember to screen or close windows entirely.
